$100,000 Church To Be Constructed In City

Diocese Heads Have Approved Plans Of Salem Congregation

Rev. Fr. Casey, Pastor of St. Paul's Church
Here Announces Construction Will Start Soon; English Gothic Type

Rev. Fr. Maurice Casey, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic church, today announced that Bishop Joseph Schrembs, head of the Cleveland diocese, and his council has approved the construction of a new $100,000 church in Salem, to be built at the intersection of State st and Ohio ave.

Work on the new structure will start as soon as the weather permits, Rev. Casey announced.

The building will be of English Gothic architecture, village type, and the first of its type to be constructed in Ohio. It will be 135 feet long and 50 feet wide with an additional Mary chapel constructed along a portion of the west side of the building 50 feet in width. The church will accommodate 650 people and the chapel which will be independent of the church building, 75 people.

The new structure will replace the present church which was constructed 50 years ago when Magr. Treiber, now pastor of St. Joseph's church in Canton was pastor of the Salem congregation. The old building has a seating capacity of 400.

To Remove Old Church
While construction work on the new church is progressing the old building will stand on its present site and services will be held in it. When the new building is completed, the old structure will be removed and the area between the new church and the present sister's home will be landscaped.

Plans and specifications are completed, bids will be received and the (Continued on Page 5)

PROHIBITION BOON TO MAN, BEETHAM CLAIMS

Ohio Prohibition Commissioner Tells of Success of Dry Laws In State and Advantages From Them; Enforcement Explained

Declaring prohibition the greatest achievement of the century, Rupert R. Beetham, of Cadiz, Ohio state prohibition commissioner, addressed a large gathering of Salem church-goers at a union church service held at the First Methodist church Sunday night.

The service was held under the auspices of the Salem Women's Christian Temperance Union in conjunction with local observance of the tenth anniversary of the prohibition amendment.

Beetham upheld the prohibition amendment without exception. He declared that the law can be enforced and is being enforced but that its strict enforcement lies greatly within the jurisdiction of municipal authorities of any city, town or village. He said that prohibition has reduced deaths from alcoholism one-half and has accomplished many other things for the United States.

"Today," the commissioner stated, "is a day of great rejoicing over 10 years of prohibition in the United States. Prohibition is the greatest achievement of the century. Ten years have made liquor traffic once a legal business, into a criminal offense and those who participate in it fugitives from justice. The 18th amendment has driven liquor traffic if it exists at all from the main streets of a city into alleys and cellars and to the general rendezvous of law-breakers.

"To say Ohio is dry," he continued, "does not mean that we have no bootleggers. It does mean, however, that the overwhelming sentiment of Ohio is dry and that the principals of the Christian religion dominate the thought of the state."

"Prohibition has driven five-sixths of the Keeley cures out of business. It has reduced deaths from alcoholism one-half; it has eliminated the salaried army of bootleggers."

Aerial Observation Of

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Barring unforeseen meteorological changes the middle west is to be tortured by another severe drop in temperature. It was indicated here today as a blizzard rolled eastward through Montana and Idaho.

Out in the west along the great divide the storm last night was a roaring blizzard that stalled trains and almost paralyzed traffic and communication.

Zero and sub-zero temperatures still held the great plains region in their grip following the record-smashing cold of Friday and Saturday that took its toll in human lives, stock losses and property damage. Two more deaths in the Chicago area brought the toll of the week end storm to five dead.

Although the latest storm is scheduled to settle through the Illinois and Indiana region today, C. A. Donnel, government weather

Surveys of the toll in lives taken by the record cold wave that has swept the middle west and the great plains region indicate that at least 25 persons died from exposure in the sub-zero blast.

Most of the victims died in the plains states where temperatures of 50 degrees below zero existed and mountainous drifts of snow destroyed communications and prevented relief.

Flood Situation Bad

In the Vincennes, Ind., flood area rescue workers continued their desperate efforts today to reach marooned farmers and their families with food and warm clothing. Two aviators after a flight over the stricken area reported that every house on high ground was literally jammed with families made homeless by the flood waters from the Wabash river.

Nearly 5,000 residents in and about Newport, Ark., are endangered by flood waters from the White river, rescue workers in the affected area reported today as they made efforts to provide relief for the town should the waters drive the residents out.

Reports from the St. Francis river basin in Missouri said that river had overflowed and inundated thousands of acres of fertile farm lands, driving several hundred families to seek shelter on higher ground.

Passengers Trapped In Flaming Ship As Three Motors Stop

Ship Crumbles Allowing Gasoline In Wing
To Spray Cabin; Lindbergh Heads Quiz
of Western Air Tragedy; Witnesses

San Clemente, Cal., Jan. 20.—Around the twisted, flame-scarred skeleton of what was once a graceful air liner investigators led by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today were to try and locate the trouble that plunged the giant plane to earth in flames, killing its sixteen occupants.

Bearing 14 holiday pleasure seekers the tri-motored plane roared away from Agua Caliente, Mex., race track at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and swung northward toward Los Angeles under leaden low-hanging clouds.

Dusk had descended as Pilot Basil Russell guided the plane along the coastline between Oceaside and San Clemente persons on the ground were attracted when the three powerful wasp motors began to sputter and miss.

The plane swung inland, seeking a landing place as the motors died. Pilot Russell put the plane into a glide that for an instant seemed to spectators would prove a perfect landing. The wheels touched the rain soaked earth and the plane buried its nose in the ground and overturned.

There was a blinding flash followed by the roar of an explosion and a second later the air liner was a mass of flames, its 16 occupants trapped in the blazing fuselage.

Gasoline Explodes
One of the landing wheels had caught in a chuck-hole. The ship buckled. A gasoline wing tank apparently split open, drenching the interior of the all-metal cabin with fuel. An unknown cause ignited the gasoline and in an instant the cabin was a blazing charnel.

Jets of flame rocketed from every window and from crevices in the metal sheathing. Passersby on the coast highway three-quarters of a mile to the west, halted their cars and ran to the scene. They found a monster airplane still glowing and (Continued on Page 3)

HELP IS NEEDED

The China International Famine Relief confronts the most hopeless situation it has ever faced in famine-ridden China in the northern provinces of Shensi, where thousands are dying daily from starvation and exposure. It is estimated that 2,000,000 persons of the 6,000,000 in the area which extends on both sides of the Wei river have died during the past eight months and that as many more are doomed.

Those familiar with the situation recognize that very little can be done on account of insurmountable transportation difficulties. To make the situation worse a cold wave during which the temperature dropped to 32 degrees below zero, has caused thousands to freeze to death. Superstitious observers must have discerned something to talk about in the fact that it was the coldest weather recorded in the history of the province.

Famine sufferers, gradually weakened through fighting hard for existence, are eating grass, dried leaves, tree bark and leather. One observer reports that entire villages have been eliminated by cold and starvation and the population of others has been reduced to a handful of survivors. Many of these struggling human beings have scarcely intelligence enough to know what is happening to them.

The China International Famine Relief is making every effort to send millet to the Wei river in large quantities, but the only shipments it has been able to get into the district scarcely sufficed for 2,000 children and 100 old women, who have been assembled at Shan-Pu and are being kept alive with rations of a pound of millet each a day.

The magnitude of the disaster becomes more apparent when it is realized that hunger is exacting a greater toll of human lives than did the World War. Back of that lies another tragedy—the helplessness of the world to succor the sufferers. It is hard for an American to realize that there are regions in China, larger than many great countries, which are inaccessible except by foot or horseback. In the face of that fact, however, the world's vaunted civilization loses some of its aspect of self-sufficiency.

It is not to be understood, however, that relief work is at a standstill. It is not. There are millions of Chinese living in other more accessible regions who can be saved and Americans will respond, as they have in the past, to the call of mercy for a stricken people.

The bolshevik government of Russia is offering crown jewels, estimated to be worth $264,000,000 for sale. Here's a chance for those looking for historic gems provided, of course, that they haven't any compunctions about buying stolen property.

What Others Say

Just why so useful a piece of male accoutrement as the derby should need defense is hard to understand, but it apparently does. Now that it is staging a spirited comeback, derbies are being written in its behalf. Also, the wearers have fortified themselves with forceful arguments and snappy answers to wack-cracks.

In recent years the derby has been a sort of orphan child. Its wearer has been marked for ridicule. For some reason or other, the derby is supposed to be hilariously funny. We suspect that those who so view it never have worn one.

As a matter of fact, there are far more arguments in favor of the derby than against it. In the first place, it goes well with almost any ensemble, whether formal or informal. As a substitute for the ridiculous high alk hat, it has been accepted in the best circles. At least by the second best.

For another thing, it keeps its shape regardless, unless it receives a death-wound in the form of a puncture. Weather has little or no effect on it. The convenience with which it can be removed and replaced in the social amenities alone makes it worth its price. It masses the hair comb far less than a soft hat and lends itself readily to rail-split or dignified angles, depending upon the nature of the wearer. Moreover, nearly all men look well in them. They are a genuine asset to the wardrobe, for they lend a worldly air. Personally, we are glad to see them coming back so bravely. Their wearers are men of fine discrimination and taste. HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

THE BEST CURE

It is very sad to see a young person, who has been well and strong, normal and cheerful in his mental process, suddenly develop some unusual and disturbing symptoms.

The things which used to make him happy may seem now to bore and even irritate him. He may develop "brain storms" when he will break furniture, swear and act like a demon.

The mental diseases of youth are grouped under the general term "Dementia Praecox." This condition rarely attacks one past 25 years of age. It is associated with the development of life.

There is a weakness of the mental processes and perverted ideas. At times there may be great mental excitement, and at others periods of depression and sadness. Occasionally there is mental alertness, and then times when the mind is confused.

Sometimes he may recite one line of poetry for hours at a time. He will perform the same act over and over.

The marked difference between the feeble-minded youth who has always been weak-minded and the youth with dementia praecox is shown by the history of the case. In dementia praecox the onset may be sudden. Shock, fright or prostration, either bodily or mental, in origin, may be followed by this dementia. In other cases the onset is gradual and the course is progressive. The acute and sudden type is the more hopeful of cure. It may take time, but recovery comes. The slow type is more serious.

If there is found to be a lowered resistance from some discoverable cause the prospect of recovery is good. For instance, if the young person has been ill or overworked removal of the existing cause will go far toward restoring his health. Recent work of physicians in these cases has made us more hopeful of their outcome. They must be studied with particular reference to localized infection in teeth, tonsils, large intestine or other parts of the body. When the physical basis is found recovery follows the removal of the primary trouble.

Careful examination of the blood and all of the secretions are necessary. Until every test has been made no reliable estimate of the probabilities can be attempted. The best cure is a good thing. Rest in bed, proper nourishment, baths, massage, change of scene are all important. More important is the finding of the fundamental physical trouble and getting rid of it.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, January 21

While this day promises to be lively and exciting it may be difficult to keep affairs in hand and avoid the usual mistakes. Employment is in a hazy state, and the personal affairs may not be harmonious or successful. The latter may be subject to duplicity or assume phases of intrigue or subtlety which are menacing.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for good judgment and alertness against duplicity, trickery and fraud in both personal and business relations. Sign all papers with caution and keep firm watch over all private affairs, lest intricate and subtly prove undermining factors against harmony and progress. Safeguard the employment also. A child born this day should be given an early education in the value of integrity, honor and the virtue of self-control.

Girl, 11, Calm At $1,000,000 Fortune

Denver Jan. 20.—Eleven-year-old Josephine Barth, who is heiress to one of Colorado's large pioneer fortunes, says "it's nice" to get that much money, but beyond that statement the slender, blue-eyed youngster is too busy having a good time to bother much about a mere $1,000,000.

Josephine became the ultimate heiress to the large estate of her grandmother when the district court recently upheld a contested will.

Josephine "knew something was up" during the entire fight over the will, because she had a guard with her wherever she went and her teachers were instructed to keep a close watch over her.

"Some day when daddy isn't watching I'm going to try the town."

Josephine goes to a school for girls and a chauffeur takes her there and brings her back every day. But this won't last always, according to Josephine.

"I'm going to get a car of my own as soon as I get big enough to drive," she said.

DAQUE ADMITS SLAYING PART

Was Present At Death Of State Trooper With Woman

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 29.—Confronted with the partial confession of Clara Dague, wanted in Pennsylvania on a charge of slaying Brady Paul, state trooper, the woman who was arrested here with Dague after a hot gun fight continued today to declare that she was not Mrs. Irene Schroeder, and that she knew nothing of the slaying of Paul.

After prolonged questioning, Dague finally disclosed some details of the gun battle which cost Paul his life. He said that he and two companions, a man and woman, were driving a stolen car when stopped by officers.

"I pulled my gun as I got out of the car," said Dague. "One of the officers stepped back and the other fired at me. Another shot was fired immediately after. I don't know whether it was the man or woman who fired. I fired at the officer's arm."

During the exchange of shots, Dague said he was wounded in the hip. He also said bullets went through his hat and his trousers.

The woman believed to be Mrs. Schroeder refused to admit that she was Dague's companion when Paul was killed.

"That's a queer statement to come from any man," she said, "and any woman. I don't know anything about it."

Shown a photograph of Donnie Schroeder, the woman failed to show the least sign of interest.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR S. W. DORR

Convicted of Slaying Man; Woman Now Faces Trial

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Genevieve O'Brien, wife of William J. O'Brien, for whose murder Samuel Howard Dorr was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment Saturday night, was scheduled to go on trial here today for that same murder.

The state contends Genevieve plotted with Dorr to kill O'Brien to obtain his insurance.

Immediate trial of Mrs. O'Brien was not anticipated because she is soon to become a mother.

A jury deliberated slightly more than three hours before it decided upon Dorr's guilt and punishment.

O'Brien was shot to death in his apartment November 29 after he was said to have discovered Dorr in his home with his wife.

He was a director in the People's State bank and the People's Savings Loan company. He was also president of the Columbiana County Mutual Insurance company.

Besides his widow he leaves one son, Leland Longshore, Alliance, and one sister Mrs. T. M. Armstrong.

of attitudes which have already been conceived.

Today's meeting afforded ample proof that the conference will have to be conducted in utmost leisure and without hurry or precipitate statements of position by the delegates.

Deliberate Methods
In view of the enormity of the task confronting the delegates and the delicacy with which the numerous controversial issues must be handled, it is felt that such a deliberate course will probably prove best for the ultimate success of the conference.

It was pointed out that the cautious viewpoint expected tomorrow will be in sharp contrast with the opening of the Washington conference of 1921-1922 when Secretary of State Hughes electrified the world by proposing a flat ratio of tonnage to all powers.

It is now evident that nothing even remotely approaching that procedure is contemplated. The delegates of all the nations attending will approach the question of tonnage figures in a most gingerly fashion.

Later this afternoon, the complete British and Italian delegations made separate formal calls upon the complete British delegation.

Eye Witnesses Tell Of Plane Crash Horrors; Flame Bursts

San Clemente, Cal., Jan. 29.—Stories that brought home the horror and grim tragedy which marked the deaths of 15 persons in the blazing fuselage of the T. A. T. Maddux trimotor plane that crashed here today by witnesses to the catastrophe.

One motorist who stopped his automobile as the faltering plane swung toward its emergency landing place told his story to Robert Hanson, son of Ole Hanson, San Clemente realtor. His name could not be obtained.

"One motor seemed to miss as the plane came flying along beneath the low clouds," he told Hanson. "The motor sputtered for some distance then seemed to catch hold only to sputter again."

"The rear of the plane came closer as the pilot sought a safe spot to land. As he drew closer the motor died."

"It looked as though it was a perfect landing as the plane swooped down gracefully to the ranch field. All three motors were dead. The landing gear seemed to touch the ground—but with a mighty force."

"The ship overturned and there was a fearful explosion. Before any of the occupants could escape they were all dead—either killed by the force of the landing or burned to death. Clothing burned almost completely from all the bodies."

Army Flier On Scene
Lieut. Virgil Westbrook, United States army flier who rushed to the scene as soon as news of the tragedy was flashed, told of standing helplessly by while the victims underwent virtual incineration.

"We could see 13 bodies pinned in the blazing cabin," he said. "They must have died when the plane struck."

"It was raining and the ship was kept lower than usual in flight because of the low ceiling. The pilot was killed."

Admit Identity
The West Virginia fugitives readily admitted their identity, police said. Jacksonville police who came here to aid in the hunt for the killers of the Jacksonville detective, viewed the men at the hospital here and were positive they were not the bandits, Leo Landry, continued in this vicinity.

The Jacksonville bandits were reported surrounded in a swamp near here late yesterday and bloodhounds were ordered from the state prison at Milledgeville. Sheriff James R. Hicks and Chief of Police Ben T. Watkins led a posse of 50 officers into the swamp after dawn today.

Five Jacksonville officers arrived to take part in the roundup. The officers surrounded the swamp and closed in on the fugitives. As soon as they approached the bandits opened fire. They were armed with rifles and pistols and plenty of ammunition. Some 200 shots were fired in the gun battle that followed. The fugitives fought until they were brought down by the officers' guns.

The three men told officers that they were serving 40 years each in the West Virginia penitentiary for highway robbery and escaped only a few days ago.

It was decided to hold the regular meetings of the board the third Tuesdays in March, April, June, August, October and December. The meetings are slated for afternoons at 1:30 o'clock.

Jerome Hull is clerk of the board. T. J. Mayer of Poland, no longer a member of the board, was former president, while Mr. Yoder, the newly elected president served as vice-president.

Harry Israel of Beint and Dr. S. G. Patton of North Jackson, are the new board members, elected last November.

had been circling for a forced landing place. The spot he chose was a good one—level, apparently safe for a night landing, but muddy.

"It must have hit terribly hard. The wreckage shows it was an angle landing. The wings were sheared completely off the fuselage and the fuselage itself was broken from the plane behind the passenger cabin."

"The clothing and bodies of the forward passengers were ablaze when we arrived. They had been thrown forward in a heap during the downward flight. Clothing was burned from them and one body had everything but the shoes burned."

Salter: Witness Crash
Two witnesses who were eye witnesses to the crash brought first news of the tragedy to Chief of Police Capps of Oceanside. They described how the plane hit the ground, bounded and then was transformed into a blazing mass by an explosion that burst fire and debris skyward.

Chief Capps sped 14 miles to the wreck and three stationed policemen kept the crowds back. Returning to Oceanside he reported that all were dead within the plane.

San Clemente heard the first flash of the disaster about the same time as Oceanside officials. Dr. Carl Grant of the San Clemente clinic and hospital, sent an ambulance, doctors and nurses. Robert Hanson and Lieut. Virgil Westbrook, a United States army flier, rode with the ambulance. With Chief of Police Forrest Eaton and Sergeant Comber, they raced ten miles southward to the wreck.

"The plane was still blazing," said young Hanson. Three bodies were outside apparently hurled from the cabin by the impact of striking the ground. One body seemed to be under one of the motors. We could see other bodies inside the ship—draped. I don't know how many there were. But they were all dead."

Col. Lindbergh, a technical official of the Maddux line was notified of the crash at San Diego where he was conducting glider flights.

Lindbergh today was to join Tumlinson and Chief Engineer William Hughes in a complete investigation of the motors.

Earlier in the day the plane had borne a cargo of passengers from Los Angeles to Agua Caliente race track and had remained there during the day until the passengers were ready to return.

All but three of the occupants who were thrown clear were burned beyond recognition. Investigators expressed the fear that some of the bodies may never be positively identified.

CONGRESS BUSY ON DRY LAWS

Modification of Jones Measure Part Of Present Task

Washington, Jan. 29.—An uncertain congress began work today on the legislative program proposed by President Hoover and his law enforcement commission for tightening enforcement of national prohibition.

The president's recommendation for transfer of prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the department of justice alone seemed to have a clear road to early enactment. All the other presidential recommendations appeared headed into controversies and lengthy debates.

The greatest uncertainty was caused by the constitutional question raised by the President's recommendation for increasing the powers of United States commissioners and over the probable efficacy of the proposal to amend the Jones "five and ten" law to permit light punishment for "casual or slight" violations. The drys were divided over these two proposals while the wets indicated they would not both to a finish.

Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, who started the recent dry controversy by attacking present enforcement conditions, indicated he would oppose both the proposal to reduce punishment for casual bootleggers and to increase the power of commissioners.

Salem Girl Averts Serious Accident

In a letter just received in Salem, Dorothy Ratscher, 16, of Sebring, Fla., tells about how she saved the life of a little girl.

Dorothy is the daughter of Mike Ratscher, foreman of the cleaning department of the National Sanitary company plant, but she is making her home with an aunt in Florida. Here is her rescue story, as told in the letter:

"My aunt was doing some shopping and I was sitting out in the car. I saw a car going down the road heading for a telephone pole and I saw the little girl in the car without her mother."

"So I jumped out of the car and ran down to the car that the little girl was in and jumped into it and turned the wheel to the right and put on the brake. I missed the telephone pole about a foot."

Engineer Completes Highway Inspection

Federal Highway Engineer F. A. Hall of Columbus has completed a final inspection of the Salem-Lisbon road, which is also known as the Cleveland-East Liverpool highway, and has approved plans for the improvement of the narrow brick section of this road during 1939. This brick section is to be re-routed and widened to a width of 20 feet, the work to be done by the state highway department.

When the road was first constructed both county and state funds were used, but the present improvement is to be done solely by the state. The project is expected to be advertised for sale either at the February or March road letting at Columbus.

Other gulf states, lake states and New England, not even mentioned. It's a wonderful country. Every American should see it, and let his children see it. Our railroads offer the maximum of luxurious comfort.

Or an automobile will take you and your family anywhere for as little as you choose to spend.

It is such a fine country that we really ought to retain exclusive control of it, and not let any league of nations court tell us what to do about its resources and responsibilities.

George Washington managed that with fewer than 4,000,000 people. Why cannot we do it, with 120,000,000?

Mr. Mumfords' Wichita Eagle, able Kansas newspaper, tells a disappointing story of a "tenth birthday victory dinner" in honor of prohibition. Three hundred were expected, only 150 came "because it was so cold."

An irreverent "wet" suggests that if beer and wine had been part of the dinner, the "noble three hundred" would have found a way through the snow, somehow.

Mayor Lawrence of Wichita warns prohibitionists that their most dangerous enemy is ridicule. It is, he says, "the sharpest and deadliest weapon." "Wets" will be interested in that.

Governor Reed of Kansas told the gallant 150 that prohibition will surely fail, but it will take another generation before it will be satisfactorily enforced. That seems a long time to endure bootlegging and its crime wave.

PROHIBITION

nated the old-town drunkard from nearly every town of the land." Discussing possibilities of the law's enforcement, Beetham stated: "Prohibition can be enforced; it is being enforced as well as any of our other laws. Many other sections of our criminal code are not enforced as rigidly as prohibition; is anyone asking for a repeal of these other laws?"

"Enforcement of all laws must be accomplished generally by local authorities. The state and the nation can not have enough officials to police every section of the country. Cleveland has 1,500 policemen, more than 50 times as many men as we have in our state department. Cuyahoga county has about three times as many sheriffs as we have operators in miscellaneous capacity. "Every community has its police officers, totalling many thousands to the state. Wherever laws are not being enforced in this state it is because local officials are not fulfilling their oaths of office. There must be co-operation among local officials both judicial and executive, in order that proper enforcement may be made possible."

Cites Advantages In answering a question on what the results of prohibition are, the speaker proclaimed that there is less drunkenness, less vice, that there are happier homes, better health, higher wages, healthier conditions and a condition of general betterment since the amendment was made effective 10 years ago.

"Most of the two billion dollars once spent for liquor is now diverted to the home and for saving purposes. We now have the world's highest standards of living. Drunkenness, poverty, misery and crime are not present to the extent they were 10 years ago.

"But," Beetham continued, "it is not only material welfare that follows prohibition in its reign for the past decade. There are moral and spiritual values. Cases of extreme cruelty are disappearing, neglect of children in court and charity cases have been cut in half. Our health has increased; the death rate is lower and the enormous expansion of our educational system is well known.

Throughout the world people are envious of America for its freedom from the curse of the saloon. The world knows we are the wealthiest nation; much of our wealth is due to the fact that we are now spending money which once went for liquor into the pockets of saloon-keepers, toward home betterments or investments. We work better, produce more and get more out of our work.

"While other nations," he concluded, "are devising ways and means of meeting untold burdens, we alone have a surplus in our treasury. We have eliminated practically all war taxes and have made heavy reductions in our federal income taxes. The people of this country are happier, wealthier and far more content than any other people on earth."

Mrs. J. B. Zeigler, president of the Salem union of the W. C. T. U., was in charge of the service and introduced the speaker. Pastors of Salem churches participated in the service.

"MAD MASHER'S" VICTIM DEAD

Miss Janet Blood Dies From Bullet Of Assailant

Cleveland, Jan. 29.—The police record of Cleveland's "Mad Masher" today included murder as funeral arrangements were being made for Miss Janet Frater Blood, 16-year-old high school girl, whom he fatally wounded last January 3 when she resisted his attentions.

Miss Blood died yesterday after a 15-day fight against the ravages of the bullet fired by the as yet unknown gunman who has terrorized women and girls throughout the city by his fiendish criminalities.

All members of the Cleveland police department were notified immediately of the girl's death and renewed intensity was given into the hunt for the prowling gunman. Miss Blood was the third victim of the "Mad Masher's" gun. Both of the other victims have recovered, although their wounds at the time were dangerous.

Agitation was spread throughout the city today following news of the girl's death for an increase in the police department.

Quarantine Homes

Conneaut, O., Jan. 29.—Following the death of six-year-old Robert Freeman of cerebro-spinal meningitis, 49 homes were under quarantine here today. The quarantine order, which affected the homes of schoolmates of the boy, was issued as a precautionary measure.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeannette Young Norton

With much common sense our hostess changed the order of courses at her dinner on a frosty night. Instead of sitting down to a first course of chilly oysters on a bed of ice, she reversed the custom. Hot soup came first, and then followed the order cocktail—all the more enjoyable because one was comforted by hot soup.

Curiously, many cooks both in home and public places, have a routine about hors d'oeuvre, and they cling to it as steadfastly as though it were a law. But the fact is, no other course permits so much latitude. The variety of hors d'oeuvre is infinite. Anything can be used—fish, meat, vegetables, bread, cereals, cheese—whatever you have in the icebox or on the pantry shelves. If it's only a small amount, it can easily be padded with something else—mayonnaise, anchovy paste, bread-crumbs. No excuse whatever for monotony in the hors d'oeuvre—not even economy, for it's a grand way to use up left-overs, and often sticking to the same item is really more expensive. The inflexible rule about having fruit cup or grapefruit as a first course isn't necessarily the most economical. In fact, fruit cup as a hors d'oeuvre has much to be said against it. Too sweet for one thing—destroying instead of stimulating appetite.

The word hors d'oeuvre means literally something beyond or outside the main dish—an accessory, merely an appetizer. Therefore it should rarely stimulate appetite, not be monotonous, nor should it be too elaborate. The hors d'oeuvre served in some of the French or Russian restaurants are overwhelmingly generous—and surpassed only by the famous Swedish "smorgasbord"—consisting of literally a dozen or more tempting dishes—fish, cheese, filled vegetables, smoked and spiced foods, huring one beyond capacity. Which would be pleasant enough if it were not later followed by a regular dinner! Perhaps in very cold climates where the appetite is extensive this may all be very well, but it is too much for the average individual in our country.

The safe guide to the best hors d'oeuvre for the average table is:

In Case After Case, Owa-Ton-Na Proves It's Merits

Canton Resident Ends Indigestion, Pains In Side and Backaches With This Natural Remedy

"I hardly seem possible that any one medicine could do for me what Owa-Ton-Na has done and in so short a time too. For months now I have been taking medicine after medicine, treatments and almost anything that was recommended to me," says Mrs. C. E. Price, 225 Gilmore Ave., N. W., Canton, Ohio.

"I was suffering with a particularly obstinate case of indigestion. Food in my gut seemed to distress me. In fact I got to the point where I didn't seem to care whether I ate or not, no appetite at all. Food would cause gas to form in my stomach which would crowd my heart and make me short of breath. Nothing seemed to want to digest."

"Gradually this condition was getting worse, my kidneys started to bother me. Backache made me feel as though my back would break and with this I suffered frequent severe headaches. Some days I felt so miserable I hardly knew what to do."

"Time after time I heard and read about the praise which other sufferers are giving this fine old Indian remedy, Owa-Ton-Na, and I felt that possibly it would help me too. It is remarkable the change that even one bottle made. My stomach started to feel better, then my appetite picked up and now I can hardly get enough to eat. Food tastes so good, too. Where I used to have to be afraid to eat for fear of suffering afterward I can now eat anything without distress."

Owa-Ton-Na is sold in Salem at Flooding Bolger & French, and J. L. Lead drug stores.—Adv.

Powerful Offensive Features Fourth Straight Salem Victory

Stonemen Overwhelm New Philly Tossers Here By 40-21 Score

A surprisingly strong offensive, formed by almost flawless team play of five Salem High varsity basketballers, carried the Red and Black of their school to a fourth consecutive victory and wore out pre-season testimonials of optimistic fans that Coach Floyd Stone's proteges will yet be heard from in northeastern Ohio cage competition in more ways than one before the 1937-38 season is over.

The Stonemen annexed a 40-21 decision over New Philadelphia High tossers in a classy tossing battle here Saturday night and displayed to all concerned that they are at last coming into their own. The slow-forming offense, so disastrously characteristic of the Salem team's play in past games, was developed into a basket-scoring attack that outclassed the Philly invaders throughout the game.

Together with this amazing offensive formation was the Red and Black's defensive attack responsible to a high degree for the drubbing administered to the invaders. New Philly scored only two field goals in the first half—none by the way in the opening period—and was allowed only six baskets from action during the entire 32 minutes of play.

Salem Kaseys Win From Canton Lodge

Although topped in two games of a three-game series Salem Knights of Columbus pin crushers took Canton Kaseys into camp on a total pin basis. The Salem aggregation won by 40 pins, R. Tubbs led the Salem team with scores of 169, 203 and 166 for a total of 538 pins. Hossler and Vignos of Canton each topped 540 pins. The scores:

The 1929-30 season and brought its record to within a few percentage points of the coveted 500 average. The team now has a record of six games won and seven lost and plays only one game next week. Youngstown East will be played at Youngstown next Saturday, giving Stone's lads their first respite since the schedule opened seven weeks ago.

New Philly scored one point in the first quarter and tallied it in the first minute of play. Gross tossed in a free throw after being fouled by Greenisen. There were personal fouls galore in this first period and the only points registered in the first six minutes of play came via the gift route. Gross fouled Bill Smith and the score was tied on Smith's toss.

Greenisen scored a gift shot after being fouled by Byrd. Rinkhart and Byrd were both given two free throws on fouls by Beck and Smith but failed to tally.

Smith tallied the first goal from action and Beck followed with another point from the foul line. Beck scored from the field on the next play, the quarter ending with Salem ahead by a 7-1 score.

W. Byrd added another point to Philly's total in the second period, scoring from the foul line after being pushed by Sartick. Rhorbaugh held Greenisen who tallied two straight shots from the foul stripe. Greenisen caged a field goal then scored two more points from the foul-line. Rhorbaugh being called for holding again. Sartick caged a field goal and Smith counted a foul and field goal. Roli registered New Philly's first field goal of the game and then followed with another right after Byrd's foul shot made the score 17-7, Salem still leading.

Salem Flashes Strength

The third quarter brought out the Salem offensive at its best, 16 points being amassed to five by the Phillies. Beck and Greenisen each tallied twice on field goals; Smith scored a fielder and two fouls and Sartick and Early each caged a basket from action. Smith was ejected from the game during the period on fouls and was replaced by Whinnery.

The excellent passwork of the Salemites was continued in the fourth session. Greenisen scoring from the field on the first play of the period, receiving a pass from Whinnery under the basket. He fouled Roli on the next play and was disqualified from action on four personals, being replaced by Charlie Quinn.

Stone soon sent in a new combination which held New Philly even. Roli scored twice from action and Corso and Yates caged five points for Salem.

The game was unique in that New Philadelphia presented a much stronger team than that which invaded Salem's gym the night before. Wellsville was inferior to the Phillies in all departments of the game but the Stonemen experienced much more difficulty in winning the Orange and Black contest than it did the engagement with New Philly.

Its play was far superior against Philly than against Wellsville and indicated latent strength which has seldom been shown in the 12 previous games. Fourteen points were tallied from the foul stripe, a scoring agency at which the team had been weak before.

Salem Lassies Register Win

Red and Black Maidens Trim Leavittsburg By 33-12 Score

Salem High girls registered their fourth victory of the season, defeating Leavittsburg High lassies, 33-12 in a drab struggle at the high gym Saturday night.

The Salem lassies had the upper hand throughout the game and were never pushed. The team had a 15-8 lead at the half and tallied 15 points in the third period to assure victory.

The game was fast at times, poor marksmanship by the Red and Black lassies being the only factor in preventing the home team from rolling up a much larger score.

Columbiana Trims Both Newell Teams

Columbiana, Jan. 26.—The Columbiana high school basketballers won two easy victories Friday night in their home gym defeating Newell, (W. Va.) High, 45-16 and 33-16, the latter being the score of the boys' game. Coach Barbe used every player in uniform during the evening, 18 girls and 12 boys seeing action. The girls' game was played for the most part by members of the second and third teams, or the score might as well have been 100-0. The first half ended 28-3.

Salem Reserves Trim Phillies

McCord Tossers Display Strong Defense To Take Easy Game

Holding the opposition to a lone basket from action, Salem High reserves easily defeated New Philadelphia High reserves by 23-10 score in a prelim at the high gym Saturday night.

New Philly's offense was held scoreless from the field until late in the third period. The McCord combine flashed a strong defense and mixed it with a fairly speedy offensive and outclassed the Phillies all the way.

Caplan, with 11 points, played a strong game on offense and held his man scoreless.

Dover Outclasses Columbus Quintet

Dover, Jan. 26.—With Sucker Low showing the way, the Dover High varsity rumped all over Columbus East 33 to 13, Saturday.

Low gathered himself nine field baskets and six from foul for a total of 24 points, the largest acquired by any Dover player this season.

In the first period Dover forged ahead by two points, 7 to 5, but opened up in the second and led at half time 14-8. The big spurges came in the second half, when Dover scored 26 points and held Columbus to five.

Panthers Trounce Notre Dame Squad

University of Pittsburgh tossers made merry at the expense of the touted Notre Dame cage five and annexed an easy 23-13 decision in the annual conflict between the two rivals Saturday night.

It was Pitt's 11th straight victory. Notre Dame was outclassed all the way, the score at the half being 20-9. In the second half, the South Bend tossers tallied only one point in 12 minutes and tallied but one field goal in the whole half.

Pitt used a team of subs in the fourth period.

Court Teams Play In Tie Conflict

After the basketball teams of 8-B and 8-E had played an added period on their basketball game Saturday and the score still was deadlocked at 11 points, the teams decided to call the game a draw and will play again Saturday morning at the Memorial building.

Grimes, center, was the star of the 8-B team with two fielders and a free toss for six points. Weigand, of the 8-E quintet caged one fielder and made good on three foul goals to lead his team in scoring. The score:

Sigma Nu Tossers Trim Akron Team

Mount Union college Sigma Nu fraternity cagers, captained by Lowell "Little Rib" Allen, won their seventh consecutive game of the season, defeating Akron Garfield High at Akron last week, 22-13.

Bob Cope, Freddie Guilford and Allen, all former Salem High stars, are members of the Sigma Nu five and were main factors in the team's winning the Mount Union interfraternity tournament and the Class A intermural championship of the first half.

The Sigma Nus trimmed the Alpha Tau Omega team in the tournament finals, 29-14, last Thursday. Allen, Cope and Guilford tallied 23 points in the game. In the game against Akron the trio tallied 22 points.

THE DAY In Sports

PLENTY OF BASKETBALL
ART SHIRES QUITS RING

There will be plenty of basketball at the Memorial building gymnasium this week, but high school cage teams will be granted their first respite since the season opened for them some weeks ago. The Red and Black's tossers are scheduled for only one engagement each, these to be played from home Saturday night.

Class B league games will be played at the Memorial gym tonight. Three contests are billed. Tuesday night there will be two Class A. tussles, one of which will be the title-deciding event between the Golden Eagle and Electric Furnace. A Class B game is also booked tomorrow night.

The Golden Eagle has to win two games this week in order to maintain its prestige as the league's strongest team and is the top favorite to finish the first half with a string of seven straight victories. The Electric Furnace hasn't yet shown the power on either offense or defense as the Birds while the Art Jewelers, who will face the merchants Thursday, aren't figured as strong as the furnace-makers.

With the kind consent of Judge Landis, Charles Arthur has retired from further participation in fistic warfare and bids a firm goodbye to prospects of his adding $50,000 to his pocket finances before the baseball season opens. The Great Shires had about a five-minute conversation with the national game's high commissioner Saturday but it was sufficient for him to discover that it is either forsake his fistic following or never again feel the sting of the leather against a baseball bat.

With George "Sim" Early, G. Raymond "Butch" Volmer, Joe Haldeman and others playing the noisy roles, Joe M. Kelley was given one of the greatest ovations of the year as he strode onto the high school hardwoods to officiate the Salem High re-free New Philly clash Saturday night.

"IN THE HEADLINES"

At The State

All thrills, surprises and laughs experienced by a newspaper man in running down a murder mystery are vividly depicted in "In the Headlines," all-talking picture of metropolitan newspaper life.

Opening with a baffling double murder, the story follows through the unraveling of the mystery brought about chiefly by the star reporter of the "News," portrayed by Grant Withers, and by the cub reporter, played delightfully by Marian Nixon.

Their exciting experiences in getting the story for the paper provide much of the tense drama of "In the Headlines," and their absorption in each other much of the fun.

James Starr wrote "In the Headlines," which was adapted by Joseph Jackson. The cast includes Clyde Cook, Frank Campeau, Edmund Brees, Pauline Garon, Vivian Oakland, Robert Ober, Hallam Cooley, Ben Hall, Spec O'Donnell, Jack Wise and others. John G. Adolfi directed.

"SIDE STREET"

At The Grand

Heralded by critics as one of the outstanding films of the year, "Side Street," all-talking melodrama, opens tonight at the Grand theater. Unusual interest centers in the fact that in "Side Street" the three Moore brothers—Tom, Matt and Owen—appear co-starred for the first time in their long screen careers.

The story provides an admirable characterization for each of the three stars. It concerns a family of moderate circumstances living on Forty-ninth street in New York City. Tom is a cop; Matt an ambulance surgeon, and Owen a racketeer who carefully hides from his family his method of livelihood. Eventually Tom is called upon the round up the gang of which Owen is the brains.

When the latter finds he has ordered his lieutenants to take his own brother "for a ride," he beats Tom to the rendezvous and pays with his own life.

It is one of the most gripping and sensational climaxes ever portrayed in motion pictures.
